The resting membrane potential is the voltage (charge) difference between the intracellular and extracellular fluid, when the cell is at rest (i.e not depolarised by an action potential). It is generated by the opposing effects of chemical concentration gradients driving ionic diffusion across a selectively permeable membrane, and electrostatic forces which oppose these gradients.

Recommended reading for the Primary FRCA-updated! Buying books for anaesthetics is a difficult task- it seems no single book offers it all! We would also say that if you are just starting anaesthetics, the practical side of things are going to be the most challenging initially and not the theory, but it is good to read things up as you go along.
