A wide repertoire of monoclonal ThAb are currently licenced with hundreds more in pre-clinical and clinical development (The Antibody Society, 2014, Wu et al., 2014). These ThAb are administered for a wide range of conditions, although the vast majority are used for cancer, autoimmune disorders and transplantation (Fig. 2A and Table S2). It is interesting to note that despite the clear role ...

In chemistry, resonance is a way of describing bonding in certain molecules or ions by the combination of several contributing structures (or forms, also variously known as resonance structures or canonical structures) into a resonance hybrid (or hybrid structure) in valence bond theory. It has particular value for describing delocalized electrons within certain molecules or polyatomic ions ...

To some people, small amounts of the compounds phenylthiocarbamide (PTC) or propylthiouracil (PROP) taste very bitter; other people do not taste these compounds. The myth is that there are only two kinds of people, tasters and non-tasters, and that the trait is controlled by a single gene, with the ...

DNA repair is a collection of processes by which a cell identifies and corrects damage to the DNA molecules that encode its genome. In human cells, both normal metabolic activities and environmental factors such as radiation can cause DNA damage, resulting in as many as 1 million individual molecular lesions per cell per day. Many of these lesions cause structural damage to the DNA molecule ...

BPC-157 is the term used to refer to a pentadecapeptide, a protein with 15 amino acids. BPC is an acronym for 'Body Protection Compounds' and refers to "peptides comprising 8-15 amino acids residues with a molecular weight of 900-1,600 daltons" according to the patent for BPC-157, although another study claims that BPC refers to a gastroprotective protein used to isolate BPC-157.

INTRODUCTION. Molecular hydrogen (i.e. H₂ gas) is gaining significant attention from academic researchers, medical doctors, and physicians around the world for its recently reported therapeutic potential [1]. One of the earliest publications on hydrogen as a medical gas was in 1975, by Dole and colleagues from Baylor University and Texas A&M [2].

"The lower bound estimate that 5% of the human genome has been under evolutionary constraint was based on the excess conservation observed in mammalian alignments relative to a neutral reference (typically ancestral repeats, small introns, or fourfold degenerate codon positions).
